In Tennessee, the per capita personal income in 2005 was $30,969, up 4.5 percent from the previous year.

The Tennessee metropolitan counties had a per capita income of $33,341 in 2005. During the same period, the nonmetropolitan counties had a per capita personal income of $24,646.

Per capita personal income is the annual total personal income of residents divided by the residential population as of July 1. Personal income is derived by summing the net earnings by place of residence, person's rental income, personal dividend/interest income, and transfer payments. Personal income is measured prior to deductions of income tax and other personal taxes and is reported in current dollars. In simpler terms, it is the total income on the front page of your 1040 tax form. This data can be influenced by large growth (or decline) in population, natural disasters (i.e., flooding or hurricanes), commuting populations (those that primarily work in other counties), and state and local taxes.

In 2005, the counties with the highest per capita personal income were Williamson ($47,712), Davidson ($42,192), Shelby ($36,160), Hamilton ($34,799), Wilson ($34,030), Knox ($32,815), Montgomery ($31,812), and Sumner ($31,033). The remaining 87 counties are all below the state average. The lowest counties were Hancock ($15,526), Lake ($16,744), Wayne ($17,928), Johnson ($18,813), Lauderdale ($19,291), Morgan ($19,414), Scott ($19,632), and Union ($19,711).

The counties with the largest percentage growth during the past year were Montgomery (up 10.2 percent), Carroll (up 7.8 percent), Lake (up 7.5 percent), Fayette (up 6.8 percent), Crockett (up 6.6 percent), and Haywood (up 6.5 percent). Counties with the lowest per capita income growth include Maury (up .8 percent), Clay and Lawrence (both up 1 percent), Rhea (up 1.6 percent), Marshall (up 1.8 percent), and Van Buren (up 1.9 percent).

The urban and suburban counties that comprise the metropolitan statistical areas had a higher per capita personal income than their rural counterparts.

In the five years since the census, the per capita personal income increased by over 30 percent in three counties. These counties are Greene (up 33.5 percent), Montgomery (up 32.6 percent), and Campbell (up 30.1 percent). During this period, four counties increased less than 10 percent. They are Marshall (up 1.3 percent), Maury (up 4.9 percent), Crockett (up 8.4 percent), and Giles (up 9.9 percent).
